ABOUT THE SONG

On Lungs Alone is a Midwest emo ballad about the moment someone walks away and leaves you holding what is left. Fingerpicked steel-string and tape hiss open it quietly, then the chorus breaks wide with open-chord strums, late-entering drums and a baritone pushed to the top of its range.

Ocala, Florida songwriter Steven Hillen wrote the lyrics and every production cue. The voice is his own: he trained it in Suno by singing one of his favorite songs, the one he could sing longest and loudest, for the full recording time, and Suno generates the performance in that voice. The music video, also by xobehtedistuO, has earned three festival honors.

“Now you’re running out of air on your own,
Walking away on lungs alone!”
